On the basis of field observations, it is believed that the use of mercantile credit in the Hope-Magnolia district has declined as much if not more than in any other cotton district of the state.—Bulletin No. 237, University Agricultural Experiment Station.

Bribery Charges Given Attention

New Grand Jury To Continue Bribery Probe Is Report

Says Four Narcotic Joints Operate Within Few Steps of Capital

SAYS JURY "FIXED"

Charges Officers Know of Open Law Violations In Capital

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The new Pulaski county grand jury empaneled today was charged by Circuit Judge Abner McGehee to continue the investigation of reports of bribery of officers during the last session of the legislature, begun by the previous grand jury. Judge McGehee asserted that the state, the public and the legislators were entitled to a thorough investigation into the matter. The recent grand jury, when adjourning recommended the investigation be continued.

Roger Caudle, member of the Arkansas Railroad Commission, is already under indictment in connection with an attempted racing bill. The new grand jury was asked to investigate road houses around Little Rock and to look into enforcement of the prohibition laws generally.

Supreme Court O. K.'s Hall Law

Denies Petition for Re-hearing In Attack on Bill's Validity

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—A petition for re-hearing, in a suit attacking the validity of the Hall income tax law, was over-ruled by the Supreme Court today.

Paul B. Stanley, a Little Rock lawyer, brought the suit originally in the Pulaski chancery court a few months ago upheld the constitutionality of the act and today refused to reconsider its decision.

Say Disciples of Christ Wicked Lot

Bishop Strips Saintry Carb Off Followers of Jesus In Address

DECATUR, Ill., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Bishop Edgar Blake of Indianapolis, presiding at the annual Illinois conference of Methodist Episcopal churches, stripped some of the sainthood from Christ's 12 disciples in an address before the Methodist laymen's conference Saturday.

Apologizing for the ruthless manner in which he assailed the disciples and offering to halt his talk if the laymen wished—he was not interrupted.—Bishop Blake asserted that the disciples were not saints but were "a tough lot of Galilean fishermen who quarreled and swore and were self-seekers." He said the first thing they said when they forsook their boats and approached Jesus was: "What are we going to get out of this?"

Bishop Blake declared the disciples even quarreled and cursed among themselves on the way to Gethsemane, and he surprised the laymen by observing, "I don't believe Peter, James or John could get into the Illinois conference."

Garland Drake Is Given Promotion At Claremore

Garland Drake, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Drake, of this city, is attending school at Oklahoma Military Academy, Claremore. Last week his work at the school was recognized when he was promoted to Cadet Second Lieutenant.

Young Drake is one of the popular youngsters in Hope and the many friends of the family here will be glad to learn his efforts are being given recognition in one of the worth-while military institutions in this section.

Bail Granted To Batesville Woman

Mrs. Osborne, Held for Murder, May Secure Liberty

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The Supreme Court today granted bail to Mrs. Norma Osborne, charged with first degree murder in connection with the slaying of her husband, Morris Osborne, young merchant at Cord, near Batesville. Bond was fixed by the court at $7,500. The case came to the court on petition for writ of certiorari.

Mrs. Osborne is now held in the Pulaski county jail, having been removed here from Batesville a few days ago. The woman had sought unsuccessfully in the lower court to obtain bail.

J. P. Barber, 21, former Batesville basketball star, has been sought on a first degree murder charge in connection with the murder, since the night it happened.

Osborne was shot to death in the kitchen of his home while his wife, according to her story, was in another part of the house. She said she fainted when she heard the shots and has steadfastly denied any connection with the crime.

Batesville officers have not revealed the reason for her removal to Little Rock a week ago.

Meta Hinges for Bones Are Approved by French

PARIS, Sept. 23.—Man and nature is blamed for the indifference success surgeons have had in joining badly broken bones with metal.

Before the Academy of Medicine, Dr. Pierre Bazy presented the research work of two colleagues whose years of effort were said to have proved that nature will utilize man's metal devices if the work is well done.

Dr. Contromoulin, an ex-ray expert, and Dr. Maurice Robinet found that surgeons usually placed wires, rods and plates on broken bones with too little regard for the science of engineering and generally failed to fasten the metal well.

There's an interesting story might be told about these Hope melons. Briefly, it may be said that Laseter produced the first big melon here, as well as several champions in years following. Then some of the other growers got after him—his brother, Mr. Dudley, B. Turner and Oscar Middlebrooks—and when had gotten some real melons on the market, Laseter starts out

Mrs. Pantages To Know Fate Soon As Case Closes

Argument On Murder Charge Theater Man's Wife Begins Today

TRIAL SENSATIONAL

Accused of Causing Death of Jap Because Intoxicated When Struck

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23.—(AP)—After one more day of summation of evidence, a jury of five women and seven men trying Mrs. Lois Pantages on a second degree murder charge, is expected to begin deliberation of the fate of the vaudeville magnate's wife. Today, however, the 12 jurors relaxed on a padlocked hotel roof, after spending Saturday under guard visiting Los Angeles county's fair.

The trial has been filled with sensations varying in nature from charges made by the Rev. R. P. Shuler that the jury was hung before testimony-taking began, and intimations by prosecutors that perjury complaints would be drawn against two defense witnesses, to a surprise attack by five defense medical experts. These witnesses launched an onslaught on the state's premise that Mrs. Pantages was responsible for Juro Roku-moto's death caused by injuries received in an automobile collision June 6, because they charged she was intoxicated when she drove into his car.

The major prosecution premise, as outlined by California law, was that a death caused by one committing a felony magnifies the offense to murder proportions. State witnesses testified Mrs. Pantages was driving while intoxicated, a felony in itself. The defense expert's testimony, however, bolstered a contention that the Japanese gardener died of asphyxiation caused by administering an anesthetic for an ill-advised operation.

Minister's Charges "Gossip" District Attorney Byron Pitts stepped into the head of the prosecution at this point, admitted that the state had been taken by surprise and obtained Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy's permission to reopen the case against Mrs. Pantages, then nine state medical experts testified the anesthetic merely contributed to death, which was caused by injuries and shock.

The jury personnel was approved by Judge Hardy, who received a report of a county bar association committee's investigation of the Rev. Mr. Shuler's charges, which were made over his private radio station. The committee also reported to the Grand Jury, which announced the charges were "unfounded gossip." Final disposal of the Grand Jury investigation, with possible action against the minister, was expected tomorrow.

Max Steur, New York attorney heading the defense, and Deputy District Attorney James Costello, director of prosecution, will make the final arguments to the jury.

The Cap'n Comes Back To Take Charge of the Boat After A Brief Absence

Edgar Laseter is not old in point of years but when it comes to knowing about raising watermelons he's nearly three years older than King Tut. He proved that statement today when he ambled into town with a little knotty fellow weighing only 148 pounds—the largest watermelon the world has ever known, so far as can be ascertained.

There's an interesting story might be told about these Hope melons. Briefly, it may be said that Laseter produced the first big melon here, as well as several champions in years following. Then some of the other growers got after him—his brother, Mr. Dudley, B. Turner and Oscar Middlebrooks—and when had gotten some real melons on the market, Laseter starts out again to show them how it really should be done. He has. No question about that. And the thing that has the other fellows scratching their heads and puzzling over is how big will they have to grow one next year to beat the largest Laseter brings in this season. He claims he pulled this 148-pounder to give some real melons in his "patch" room to grow and hints mysteriously about showing folks at this year's fair some Hope melons about real watermelons.

"I'm back on deck again," he told a reporter today "and ready to tangle with these other melon growers when they get one big enough to cause me to worry. Until then, well, guess I'll just raise a few knots every year to keep 'em from thinking I've quit the business altogether."

The "Three Black Hawks"

These daring pilots will salute the crowds by passing in review in the quadron front followed by maneuvers in eschalon, then stunting in formation which will consist of looping, rolling and spinning. In addition to this they will present the stunts made famous by the "Three Musketeers" of the Army, the "Three Sea Hawks" of the Navy and the "Nine High Hats" of the Marines, the stunting teams of the organizations.

They have one or two unusual features that they picked up from the "Three Royal Canadians" stunt pilots for the Canadian Air Forces. There pilots will fly sport model Command-Aires powered by Warner Radial motors. Planes will be painted black with orange stripes. All three of the pilots are officers of the 154th. Buenos Aires To New York Is Jaunt Young Argentinean Making Victor Seghetti, of Buenos Aires, Argentine Republic, was a caller at this office Saturday afternoon, securing a letter showing he had visited here and the date.

Seghetti is making somewhat of a tour on a bicycle, headed from his native city to New York, visiting a newspaper office in every town he passes through and mailing the letters announcing his arrival on to New York to await his arrival.

Since starting his long journey Seghetti has passed through ten countries and is well on his way through the Estados Unidos. He expects to arrive in New York about Thanksgiving.

Saenger Observes Anniversary Week

Special Program Celebrates Opening of Playhouse Two Years Ago

Saenger theatre is observing its second anniversary this week, with a special program of the best talking motion pictures.

Two years ago on September 26, 1927 Saenger Theatres, Inc., of New Orleans, opened up the new playhouse as the largest and finest in the state outside the big cities. The theatre was built by J. P. Brundige who interested Saenger in acquiring a long-time lease. Mr. Brundige's vision and Saenger's enterprise, are now about to be rewarded as the big playhouse approaches greater prosperity with constantly increasing attendance.

The Saenger house is the principal amusement attraction of Southwest Arkansas, and puts Hope on a par with the best theatres in Texarkana, Texas, El Dorado and Pine Bluff.

With the coming of the new house to this city, Hope was given perfect presentation of road plays; and later, with the advent of talking pictures, Saenger installed costly Vitaphone and Movietone equipment ahead of many of the state's larger cities.

The program for Second Anniversary Week, as announced by Manager Jack Eaves is as follows: Monday and Tuesday, Clara Bow in "Dangerous Curves."

Wednesday and Thursday, Ben Lyon, William Collier, Jr. and Edna Murphy in "Lumox."

South Carolina Senator Makes Serious Charges

Lax Enforcement of Liquor Laws Also Will Be Looked Into

COURT IS CAUSTIC

Says People Are Entitled To Know All Facts In Charge

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—(AP)—An assertion that "four narcotic joints are operating near the capital, on Pennsylvania avenue and that 'this is known to people whose duty it is to stop these law violations' was made in the senate today by Senator Blease, of South Carolina.

Blease made the charge while speaking in opposition to a committee amending to the pending tariff bill eliminating the house provision extending to owners of vessels liability for un-manifested cargoes of smoking opium found on the boat.

Blease said the cases of four persons known to be law violators were presented to the Grand Jury in July but that no action had been taken. "The reason," he added, "is because some of these higher-ups prevented the grand jury from taking action."

Gentry Reunion Is Held At McCaskill

The Gentry family held a reunion Sunday at McCaskill, which was attended by 32 persons. Invitations had been extended to members living all the way from Ashdown to Arkadelphia, and the attendance was reported to be complete. An excellent dinner was served Sunday noon. Among those attending from Hope were State Senator and Mrs. U. A. Gentry, and Mr. Gentry's sister, Mrs. W. F. Lee, of Norman, Okla., who has been visiting here this summer.

Head of Shreveport Airways Dead By Suicide

SHREVEPORT, Sept. 23.—(AP)—E. B. Rudline, 33, head of Shreveport Airways, Inc., committed suicide today by shooting himself through the head with a pistol.

DePriest Defies Alabama Senator

Says Will Go To Senate Cloak Room and Try Out Mr. Hefflin

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Ways and means of playing politics and getting "your share of the patronage" was the theme of a talk here Saturday night by Oscar DePriest, negro congressman of Chicago, before the negro re-club.

"Don't take pay as a campaign worker," he said, "if you are paid election day, you can't go to a party council later and claim it still owes you something."

Citing his own experience as an example, he declared:

"I worked two years and sent $15,000 of my money doing preliminary work for Bill Thompson, now our Mayor. When I started he asked me how much I needed, and I told him nothing—that when the pie was cut, I would point out my piece. I did."

Paying his respects to Senator Thomas Hefflin of Alabama, the negro congressman remarked:

"I saw in a paper the other day that Tom Hefflin, the senator from Alabama, said if I showed up in the Senate rest room he would throw me out. Well, just for that I'm going over there and see if he's big enough. I'm not looking for trouble. But I'm not going a block out of my way to avoid it."

Edgar Laseter Is Year's Champion

Bureau Seeks To Halt Heavy Lightning Toll

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—With an annual loss in the United States of 500 lives and more than $18,000,000 property damage from lightning, the bureau of standards has issued a code for protection against the hazard.

Scientists have much to learn about the phenomena of lightning but have formulated a set of protective measures that assure reasonable safety of persons, buildings, trees and livestock.

The actual danger from lightning, in general, is pointed out to be very small, except under certain circumstances out of doors which, as a rule may be avoided.

Local Bank's Ads Win State Notice

Arkansas Bank & Trust Co. Series Republished By Magazine

A page of advertisements of the Arkansas Bank & Trust Co. in The Star, is republished in the September number of the Arkansas Banker as "some effective cotton country bank ads."

The advertisements, which appeared in the regular course of the bank's advertising contract with The Star, were prepared by Roy Anderson, cashier, and told the story of three successful Hempstead county farms. One advertisement related how L. C. Sommerville Hope Route 2, made a good showing on two small patches of potatoes and beans; another recalled the success of Earnest Steed in harvesting onions; and a third told the story of Mr. and Mrs. Willis A. Cobb, Hope Route 2, who are specializing in poultry.

Speaking of the advertisements, the Arkansas Banker says: "They tell the idea of a balanced system of farming in the heart of the cotton country. Note the personal touch—things actually accomplished. Our agricultural committee hopes other banks will follow this lead."

While this is the largest watermelon recorded thus far, the season is by no means closed, and it is rumored that other watermelons still on the vine are challenging the mark hung up by today's record-breaker.

Meantime, Hope melons are continuing to gain wider publicity this year than ever before. The latest report comes from Spartanburg, S. C., where Dr. Francis A. Buddin, pastor of First Methodist church of this city, shipped a 126-pounder last week.

"Nothing like it has ever been seen in Spartanburg before," says a news story in the Spartanburg Morning Herald.

Dr. Buddin sent the melon after his recent vacation tour of South Carolina, his native state, when a controversy was started by his reports of giant melons grown every year in Hempstead county, Arkansas. The 126-pounder settled the controversy beyond the shadow of a doubt, according to the Spartanburg Herald, and Paul M. Murph, county treasurer, friend of Dr. Buddin, to whom the melon was sent.

Air Stowaway Is Injured Seriously

Arthur Schreiber's Skull Is Fractured In Auto Accident

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Arthur Schreiber, 22, the Portland (Me.) boy who flew the Atlantic as a stowaway aboard the "Yellow Bird," probably was fatally injured in an automobile accident on Newburyport turnpike here late yesterday.

Schreiber was taken to a hospital with a fractured skull. Five companions in the car with him, were less seriously injured.

Maurice Brees, the driver, tried to cut out of line in heavy traffic and his car struck another, police said. The Schreiber car turned over while the other automobile in the collision sped on. The wrecked car belonged to Morris R. Schreiber, the stowaway's father.

Schreiber succeeded in stealing aboard the "Yellow Bird" on the morning of June 3, when Jean Assolant and Rene LeFevre took off from Old Orchard, Me. His presence was discovered too late for the French airmen to put back and he went with them to Santander, Spain, where they landed. Feted at first, Schreiber later was sent home quietly.

It Still Isn't Satisfactory

PROFESSOR C. JUDSON BERRY, of the University of Chicago, has written a book entitled "Man, the Thinking Machine," in which he seeks to demonstrate that man is a thinking machine. He is a thinking machine, he says, and he is a thinking machine. He is a thinking machine, he says, and he is a thinking machine. He is a thinking machine, he says, and he is a thinking machine.

After asserting that all life, including mental and spiritual life, is simply a mechanistic process, Professor Berry asserts that his theory is neither preposterous nor pessimistic. "Man is a thinking machine," he says, "and he is a thinking machine. He is a thinking machine, he says, and he is a thinking machine. He is a thinking machine, he says, and he is a thinking machine."

This is beautifully written, and there is a good deal to be said for Professor Berry's viewpoint. It is a matter how charmingly such a conception of human existence is worded. It will nevertheless strike the vast majority of people as repellent.

None of us feel the imperative need of connecting our own individualities with some power that will preserve them forever. We may grow weary of our mortal condition, we may overlook the power of human endurance, but at the bottom of our hearts we all cling to the immortality that somehow, somewhere, we shall have a chance to make a fresh start, to prove our dignity in some fresher, nobler region.

We cannot bear the thought that the grave may be the end of everything; it is only by looking upon it as the beginning, and not the end, that we can keep our optimism and our courage.

For that reason, Professor Berry's three master words will leave most of us quite untouched. No words can render a theory like his palatable.

A Heritage of the War

THE World war left mankind with a great many very troublesome heritages. Among them, one of the worst is the Palestine question, which has now broken out in a renewed battle between fanatical Arabs and Jewish Jews.

It is no exaggeration to say the present troubles in Palestine are an outgrowth of the war. They are a direct result of the war, and they are a direct result of the war. They are a direct result of the war, and they are a direct result of the war.

England's action in Egypt and the Balfour declaration threatened when Turkey entered the war on the side of Germany. It became necessary to do something to prevent the Germans and Turks from descending through the Sinai and capturing the British empire's resources in the east. So British leaders got into a hurry, without much regard for the needs of the situation.

First of all, they enlisted the aid of the Jewish tribesmen by promising to set them in as an independent nation. They promised them a homeland in Palestine. They promised them a homeland in Palestine. They promised them a homeland in Palestine.

Then, in 1917, in an effort to win the support of Jewish Jews, the British promised to establish a Jewish homeland in Palestine. And in the meantime, owing to a misunderstanding with the French, they promised France a great portion of Syria, together with an interest in the Mosul of the oil.

Thus Palestine was promised three very different things. The Jews were promised a homeland. The French were promised a great portion of Syria. The British were promised a great portion of Syria. The British were promised a great portion of Syria.

Meanwhile there is a movement in Palestine, with the promise of more to come, which is the heritage of a modern world.

Optimism. In A World of Gloom

THE history of the world shows that prophets speak only of disaster, but peace and prosperity come to us in waves. This nation has had such a long history of prosperity that the prophets speak only of disaster. They are not prophets, but they are prophets. They are not prophets, but they are prophets.

We are challenged in the writing of this editorial by something we read in a recent issue of a church paper. It was a mustering of the modern trend of newspapers and magazines. This is a newspaper, and as such it is charged with the duty of presenting the news of the world to its readers.

This is what the church message said in a recent issue.

"For a long time now, one hundred years ago, the church has been a vacuumed vessel in many homes. A year or two ago it was changed to a monthly. Now the church has been a vacuumed vessel in many homes. A year or two ago it was changed to a monthly. Now the church has been a vacuumed vessel in many homes."

But here is the explanation. The church has been a vacuumed vessel in many homes. A year or two ago it was changed to a monthly. Now the church has been a vacuumed vessel in many homes. A year or two ago it was changed to a monthly. Now the church has been a vacuumed vessel in many homes.

The church has been a vacuumed vessel in many homes. A year or two ago it was changed to a monthly. Now the church has been a vacuumed vessel in many homes. A year or two ago it was changed to a monthly. Now the church has been a vacuumed vessel in many homes.

AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL—POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Helen Page feels unhappy when her classmates accuse her of being in love with her handsome guardian, Leonard Brent. But he represents all that she knows of home and family and she adores him blindly.

Brent changes all his plans for Helen's future after a chance meeting with a dying beggar, Charles Owens Nellin, who tells a strange story which Brent is able to corroborate to some extent by a visit to Yonkers.

On graduating, Helen reminds her guardian of his promise to reveal her parentage and is amazed when he informs her that she is heiress of a millionaire, Cyril K. Cunningham, and that he promised her parents to take her to him when she was 18. They go to Yonkers and Brent introduces her to Cunningham as his granddaughter. He offers as proof the locket containing a picture of Evangeline Cunningham which he had taken from the dying Nellin.

Helen remains at Bramblewood while the lawyer investigates the story. Cunningham presents her with a car which she drives everywhere. One day she accidentally strikes a girl, Eva Ennis, who has to be taken to the hospital. Eva's brother, Robert, upbraids Helen for her selfish recklessness and then, noting her unstrung condition, offers to drive her home. Cunningham receives him graciously and invites him to spend the evening. The young couple go for a canoe ride.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII

One of the things that Robert Ennis was ever to be grateful for was the fact that he did not kiss Helen at that moment.

He knew the desire, the urge that came like an avalanche, sweeping all before it, disregarding restraint, taking no account of cost.

He knew it, and he mastered it, for one thought remained clear in his mind. This girl was not for him. His life was devoted to Eva. It was for her future that he was working. She depended upon him. And he could not lay a burdened future at the feet of a girl like Helen Brent, even had he dared to take her romantic gesture seriously.

Her hand fluttered away from his and a flush stole quickly into her cheeks. Had he deliberately repulsed her overture? Did he still consider her a devil-may-care modern?

An awkwardness descended upon them that lasted until they reached the boathouse. Helen found relief in helping. Bob got the canoe launched.

The commonplace phrases they used banished much of the restraint that had fallen upon them and gradually, as they glided over the smooth water, the spell of the night reweave itself into their minds.

To Bob Helen appeared to be an ethereal creature from another land. Her white dress merged into the background of moon-silvered water like a part of the moonlight itself. Only a glint now and then from the spangled jacket when she stirred slightly hinted of reality.

He was glad when she began to sing, in a low melodious voice. His sense of having been transported out of his own world was becoming uncomfortably convincing.

Conversation seemed not to suggest itself to either of them. They were living their hour, not discussing it as they would when they were older and sought to recapture the rapture of an awakening that never can be repeated. Old lovers talk, relieve their dreams. Youth dreams. They were content with silence—the silence of song.

Presently Helen said they must go back and Bob headed the canoe toward the boathouse without vocal protest. But every instinct in his nature cried out against parting so soon.

Their good night was strictly formal. But the thoughts with which they fell asleep were not. Bob was wondering what it would be like to bury his face in that alighting wealth of hair and Helen was thinking that—well, for once Leonard Brent did not get her good night thought.

Brent stepped forward and Helen introduced him to Eva. "Pretty kid," he thought.

But in the morning he came to Bramblewood and his suavely forceful personality caught at her wavering interest and fastened it securely upon himself again.

Helen told him about the accident to Eva Ennis and asked him to drive to the hospital with her. Brent was quite willing to go. He did not care to remain long at Bramblewood, either to engage in conversation with Mr. Cunningham or to be entertained by Helen. He feared both.

Mr. Cunningham's questions were dangerous—and Helen's company as well. He must avoid the appearance of having anything but a paternal interest in her and this he could not do without harm to his plans if he spent much time with her. For certainly an aloofness on his part would engender a similar attitude on hers in time, he reasoned.

They were admitted to Eva's room without delay. Helen went swiftly to the bed and took the hand that Eva extended in a touching friendliness.

"How are you?" she inquired anxiously.

Eva smiled at her.

"Very little pain this morning, thank you," she replied.

"I telephoned late last night and they told me you were sleeping," Helen said.

"Yes. After Bob left. He came in late." Eva's eyes were shining with excitement as she looked at Helen. Bob had told her that he'd been at Bramblewood—told her how wrong he had been in his first judgment of Helen. Eva was delighted, because nothing could make her believe that Helen was entirely

She was a bit thrilled, though she had no idea that Brent had been attracted by her appearance. Her mother had brought some of Eva's own garments to the hospital that morning and had spent an hour in doing the things for her daughter that no one else can think of.

The soft, curly brown hair was brushed until it gleamed and the shell pink jacket Eva wore was not finer and softer in its silken texture than the round young throat that rose from it.

The blue eyes were shadowed with the marks of pain but their blueness had not faded and there was even a faint tinge of pink underneath the delicate skin of the cheeks.

She looked very sweet and delicate, very appealing and feminine. Rather a novelty to Brent, meeting a girl like her. It struck his fancy to give it attention.

Eva tore her eyes away from him.

"The doctor says I may go home in a few days," she said to Helen.

"I'll come for you," Helen promised.

A few minutes later she left with Brent. "What do you think of her?" she asked when they were out of Eva's hearing.

"Sweet," Brent answered indifferently.

A cloud passed over Helen's face at his answer. Of course she couldn't have expected him to admire Eva. She knew too well the type of woman to whom he bowed in admiration.

Brent wanted to know what was back of the accident and Helen told him frankly that she had been bored to desperation by the life at Bramblewood.

Brent understood what she left unsaid—that she had been longing for him. Secretly he glowed with satisfaction. But when he spoke his voice was tinged with sadness.

"I'm sorry you haven't been happy," he said, "because I believe your grandfather is getting to love you."

Again a shadow passed over Helen's features. "I'm afraid he is," she agreed. "And I'm very fond of him, too—in spite of . . . everything."

Brent sighed. "Well, my dear, you must not harbor resentment. He is not the same man who was unkind to your mother. She would forgive him if she were here and I'm sure she would ask you to do the same."

"But it's so different from all I had planned for and dreamed of," Helen protested.

Brent took her hand and gave it a reassuring squeeze. "Never mind," he said promisingly; "we can play again when everything is adjusted."

Helen felt uneasy. "Oh, but I think my accident has made me realize that I haven't think so much about myself," she said quickly.

Brent's face darkened. "Did I hear that little Ennis girl say something about a chap she called Bob?" he asked.

Out of the corner of his eye he observed Helen's change of expression. It was very slight, but it was unmistakable. He noted, too, that she hesitated a second before answering.

"Yes," she said simply.

"Who is he?" Brent asked, and Helen was conscious that the question had snapped from his lips in irritation.

She turned her head and regarded him in amazement. Was he jealous of her? Strangely the thought was not so pleasing to her as it would have been a few days earlier. She was aware of dreading it now.

"He's Eva's brother," she said quickly.

"I see," Brent mused. "You have met him?"

"Yes."

That simple word, uttered as Helen uttered it, told Brent more than Helen herself knew it contained. It set his hair-trigger brain to work to save his scheme from smashing on a natural hazard.

"Helen," he said suddenly, "wouldn't you like to come in and go to the theatre with me?"

DOG FITTED WITH GOGGLES; LITTLE MISTRESS PLEASED
WASAU, Wis., Sept. 23.—A bull-dog that had become dear to the heart of 2-year-old Geraldine Albers was growing slowly blind and the girl's father sought eagerly to save the dog's eyes.

As a final recourse the animal was taken to an optometrist who fitted him with specially designed "goggles," he lenses were held in place by a harness that fit the bull-dog's head. The animal now can see well—with the aid of his goggles.

TWAIN WILLING TO DIVIDE HIS PORTION OF BANQUET
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 23.—Mark Twain confessed a tremendous appetite in a letter recently loaned to the Missouri Historical Society here. In declining an invitation to dinner at the home of P. D. Peltier, Twain wrote:

"Mean time will you kindly see that the portion of your banquet which I would be allowed to consume, if I were present, is equitably distributed among the public charities of our several states and territories? I would not want any partially shown on account of political creed or geographical position, but would beg that all the crates be of the same size."

Roosevelts Present Rare Panda Skin to Museum

Those globe-trotting Roosevelt boys, back in the United States after adventuring and hunting for several months in the wilds of Tibet and Indo-China, are shown above exhibiting one of their prize collections of the expedition—a rare panda skin, approximately six feet long, and believed to be the first ever taken by a white man. Above, left to right, are Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Suydam Cutting, photographer of the expedition, Stanley Field of Field Museum, Chicago, to which the skin and other trophies were presented, and Kermit Roosevelt.

Drive a Chevrolet Six!

—so Delightful to Drive!

The Chevrolet Six delivers its power with that smooth, even, velvety flow which characterizes the truly fine automobile! At every speed, you travel without the slightest annoyance from vibration or rumble. Equally delightful are the comfort and handling ease. Four long semi-elliptic shock absorber springs, set parallel to the frame, provide the road balance found in the finest cars. The steering gear is equipped throughout with friction-free ball bearings. And the big non-locking 4-wheel brakes are quiet, positive and unusually easy to apply. Only a demonstration can reveal how delightful it is to drive this amazing car!

—so Durable and Dependable!

In order to appreciate the value of the new Chevrolet, it is necessary to remember what a really fine Six it is. Its design represents more than four years' development and testing. Materials are carefully selected from the finest available sources of supply. Highly skilled workmen perform every manufacturing operation. And inspection is rigorous and continuous, from raw material to finished product. The result is quality so high that you can confidently look forward to thousands upon thousands of care-free, dependable miles!

—so Economical to Own!

Many people still do not appreciate how little it costs to own a Chevrolet Six. The Chevrolet Coach, for instance, with its beautiful Body by Fisher, is priced at $595, f. o. b. factory, Flint, Michigan—with only the most reasonable charges for handling and financing. You can actually secure a Chevrolet Six for practically the same down payment and low monthly charges you would expect to pay for any low-priced car. In addition, the Chevrolet Six delivers better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline, with unusually low oil consumption! And Authorized Chevrolet Service is available everywhere on a low flat-rate basis, with extremely low-priced replacement parts. Come in to-day for a demonstration.

Strike Leader in Riot Trial

Alfred Hoffman, above, 350-pound organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, is one of six labor organizers and textile strikers arrested on charges of rioting, rebellion and inciting to riot at Marion, N. C. Hoffman's organization, unlike the Communist National Textile Workers' Union, is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

"Tunney was dropped with a succession of blows to the head in the round in question. He was in practically what was a sitting position with his left glove resting on the middle ring rope. His right flopped powerless along the canvas. His left foot was on the floor with his knee hinged upward. His right leg was curled beneath him. A count of at least four was given Gene, some claim more, before Dempsey had reached a neutral corner and then the count started over again. By the time he new count of five had been reached there was but slight change in Tunney's position on the floor, his left leg had straightened out a bit from its terribly strained position, but he was in mind, at no time within the count of what would have been an actual count of ten did Tunney try to roll forward on his knee. A Boxer's Instinct.

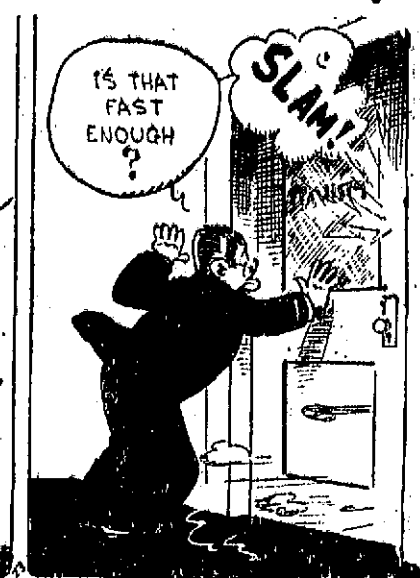

"You can make as thorough an examination as you wish of cases where fighters have been knocked down and here is something that you can discover to be a positive fact. The first thing that a boxer does who has been knocked down is to instinctively roll or throw himself to his knees. He does this instinctively so as to be in the most natural position to aid himself in getting to his feet. You can depend upon it, that if a boxer does not ready himself so he can get one knee beneath him and resting on the canvas, either that man does not want to get up or he is not in a position to try to do so. There is no quit in Tunney, so you can make up your mind on this much—Tunney was still out at least for 11 seconds."

"I have made quite a study of knockdowns since that talk with Muldoon and through it is not an easy admission to make in my case I am now inclined to admit that Gene Tunney has much to be thankful for."

Dallas Steers Win Texas League Flag

Defeat Wichita Falls In Fourth Game of Playoff Series

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 23.—(P)—Victor Frazier, 20 pitched the Dallas Steers to the 1929 Texas League pennant here Sunday when he let the Wichita Falls Spudders down with five scattered hits and beat them 2 to 1, in the fourth game of the playoff series.

More than 18,000 fans roared their approval as the rookie star turned in his second victory of the series over the Spudders. Hurling probably the greatest game of his short but brilliant career, only one of the Oilers' blows was clean. The other four were through the Steer inner defense. Only three balls were hit to the outfielders. Ten Spudders struck out.

For the second time in the series, Frazier was opposed by the crafty Andy Messenger and he again shaded the submarine artist. Both Dallas runs were scored off Messenger before he retired for a pinch batsman in the eighth, but only one of them was earned. He struck out three.

Victory gave the Steers an additional day of rest before they clash with the Birmingham Barons, Southern Association champions, in the first game of the Dixie series Wednesday. Manager Milton Stock and his team will leave here at 11 o'clock Monday night for the Alabama city. Although no special train has been chartered, many Dallas fans are expected to accompany the club.

"EMPRESS OF IT" SHAKES HER "WHOOPEE" MANNERS

The "Whoopee girl" of the seven is no more. Clara Bow has become a young star with the serious purpose of succeeding in a large manner. She gets that way in "Dangerous Curves" her second Paramount talking picture in which she portrays a circus performer. With all the circus girl's serious ambitions she has not dimmed Miss Bow's vivacity and enthusiasm. It is a peppery little performer that the "it" girl portrays. The big difference from her other roles is that the circus maid has more to concern her than being the life of the party. Incidentally she also succeeds in that.

ATE VERY LITTLE, SO EASILY UPSET

Lady Says Indigestion Troubles Were Relieved by Thedford's Black-Draught.

Piedmont, S. C.—"For a long time, I had a severe case of indigestion," says Mrs. Bell Buckheister, of 7 River Street, this city.
"So many things that I ate hurt me, I almost quit eating until I was so weak and run-down, I could not do my work, or go about to see my friends. I would burn in my chest. I had severe headache, and such a tight, smothering feeling. I would be obliged to eat a little, then it would hurt me.
"A friend said to me: 'What causes your smothering spells?' and I told her 'indigestion and constipation.' She said: 'Why don't you take Black-Draught more often?'
"I was just too weak then to do my work. I began taking small doses after meals, and in just a few weeks I could eat anything I wanted to, then take my small dose of Black-Draught and feel fine.
"I soon regained my health and strength, and could eat most anything. I haven't taken any other medicine for five or six years. I am rid of the stomach trouble, don't get constipated, and give the praise to Black-Draught."

Dempsey's New Matchmaker Big Cauliflower Dealer

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—(P)—Jack Dempsey, blossoming out as a boxing promoter in the Chicago Coliseum, has engaged Ray C. Alvis as matchmaker for his branch office here, to meet requirements of the Illinois law. The state, flying the home industries banner, insists that a matchmaker must have been a resident of the state for three years.

The law further provides that a matchmaker cannot manage boxers, so Alvis has turned his 55 centuries over to Barney Abel, a veteran Chicagoan.

Alvis is one of the world's largest dealers in boxing cauliffowers. That is to say, he has one of the biggest stables in the country, having 56 athletes of various degrees of skill in his barn. His chief gladiator, until recently, was Chuck Wiggins, the Indianapolis playboy. Another star is Young Jack Thompson, negro welter.

Farm Boy Makes Fortune From Peanuts

Sore fingers from shelling peanuts on his father's farm caused Tom Huston to invent a peanut huller which was his first step in entering a million dollar peanut business. He manufactured the machines until the market for them was supplied. He then entered the production end and now operates a big plant in Columbus, Ga. Recently he refused an offer of $4,400,000 for his plant, shown in the upper picture. His first plant is shown at lower left and Huston is pictured at the lower right.

Stunt Pilots To Accompany TourThree Black Hawks' Feature
Air Novelty Here
At Fair.

Three stunt pilots "The Three Black Hawks" will entertain the crowds that visit the airport during the week of the State Air Fair. The members of this famous trio are Lieutenants Ellis M. Fagan, Thomas Patton, and John D. Bell. These men are all stunt pilots of the 1914 Observation Squadron of the Arkansas National Guard.

A series of stunts along with other novel features will be shown and three command-aircraft stunts covered by Verna Radio notes.

Lieutenant Fagan has just received a telegram from Edward J. "Burrhead" Chief of the Air Regulations Bureau at Washington giving these men permission to put on these spectacular stunts.

Lieutenants Fagan, Patton, and Bell have been practicing daily to perfect the details of these spectacular stunts and in order to make their maneuvers as safe as possible will carry the same number of parachutes as usual. This is necessary in order that the performance will be exactly the same and that they will all be making the same speed while standing in these formations. These men are endeavoring to give the people of Arkansas a sample of the spectacular stunts that the famous stunt pilots have recently entertained with at National Air shows and Races. Their stunts will resemble the feats of the famous "Three Musketeers" of the Army and the "Three Sea Hawks" of the Navy, and the recent spectacular show put on by the "Nine High Seas" of the Marines, whose exhibitions were staged at the Cleveland races the first of this month.

Lieutenant Fagan said that they will be one of the most dramatic stunts made famous when Col. Lindbergh flew with the two High

Hats in Cleveland. Lt. Hutton says that he found a novel method of doing a half roll after watching the performance of the "Three Royal Canadians," the stunt pilots of the Canadian Air Corps.

The "Three Black Hawks" will be in formation with wings overlapping. They will drill the crowds by coming, turning, and sailing in formation. The novel stunt which they will use is to have the leader roll over in his track and the other two planes follow, maintaining their "V" in close formation. The leader then completes his half roll and flies in underneath, going in the opposite direction. Numbers two and three in formation fly to the outside and close in on the leader after flying back in the opposite direction. They will pass in review before the stands in section four and in section.

Lieutenant Fagan says they expect to do the "Square Loop" which was made famous by Col. Lindbergh's feat and it is hoped that they will be able to also make the "Loop" with a "C" curve, not much stunt has been made famous by the local Squadron here.

The "Black Hawks" will take off and in formation circles and loop and conditions permit. The show will be over Wednesday of this week, guests of the fair management while in the city.

Fulton Man Wins
Pasture ContestElmer Calhoun Gets Free
Trip To Arkansas
State Fair

Elmer Calhoun, Fulton, Mo., has won first prize in the pasture improvement contest in Hempstead county and gets a free run to the State Fair, October 1-11.

The prize was made possible by the cooperation of the Missouri Poultry & Rabbit Raising Association, J. A. Buntson. The contest was continued and entries made last evening during the time the Agricultural Extension man was in this county. There were a total of eight entries, but only three received mention for the prize. These were Elmer Calhoun, Ruffin White and J. M. Ray.

Mr. Calhoun improved his acre of pasture by putting the underground of the land, covering former fence, brush, grass and weeds, and by keeping the weeds mowed. While the mowed grass summer has been used in the new pasture, Mr. Calhoun described it getting a fair share of the new pasture. Since the addition of the grass and weeds, enough material to make a good pasture and of the season, Mr. Calhoun expects to find a few more patches of cover like White clover, Red clover and Black clover, which he expects will winter and spring when will naturally and to the benefit of the pasture.

The pasture was judged according to the following points:

1. Improvement of new pasture.

2. Improvement of old pasture.

A judges committee made pasture improvement and more valuable and as our pasture, a pasture is made into a good pasture and into a good pasture the same amount of time as good pasture is made and good pasture is made, according to the following points:
